

USA TODAY
A GANNETT COMPANY

ADVERTISEMENT

'12 Years' cast parties in Toronto

Sep. 8, 2013 | 0 Comments

Recommend

Be the first of your friends to recommend this.

Recommend 0 Tweet 0

A A

Sarah Paulson and Paul Giamatti attend the Fox Searchlight TIFF Party during the 2013 Toronto International Film Festival at Spice Route on Sept. 7. / Larry Busacca, Getty Images

by Donna Freydkin, USA TODAY

FILED UNDER

USA Today Life
USA Today People

TORONTO - The Fox Searchlight bash at Spice Route was perhaps the happiest place in town Saturday night, as the studio reveled in its string of winners.

First and foremost, 12 Years a Slave, which is the talk of the festival. Right now, it's the movie to beat come Oscar time.

But director Steve McQueen was wisely circumspect when asked about the hype and the awards season ahead.

"I'm just happy the film got made. My achievement is that it was made. That's the main point I want to make," says McQueen, who is not known as a comfortable gladhander. "I am pleased that people are seeing it and that's enough for me. Everything else is gravy."

Julia Louis-Dreyfus hung out with her Enough Said director Nicole Holofcener, while Sarah Paulson walking around hugging and chatting and cutting up with her 12 Years co-star Paul Giamatti. And befitting the studio's diverse slate of films - the food choices consisted of candy, sushi and sliders.

ADVERTISEMENT

Most Popular | Most Commented | More Headlines

NCAA re-rank: Our list from 1-125

A map of when undefeated teams will lose

All-Pro LB takes leave of absence

Manning brothers like you've never seen them

Which team is NFL's biggest disappointment?

Baby grabs a beer during MLB celebration

The Dolphins are the best of the 3-0 teams

Why the Bears' D is in trouble

Yankees celebrate Rivera's amazing career

More National Headlines

Copyright 2013 USATODAY.com